Snake Ridge Fire June 3 update

Happy Jack, Ariz., June 3, 2017, For Immediate Release — With west/southwest winds and excellent ventilation predicted over the next several days, fire personnel plan on conducting burnout operations tomorrow along the powerline to ensure the powerline is protected from severe wildfires and to help completely contain the wildfire within the next several days.

Burnout operations will begin at approximately 8 a.m., and a plume of smoke will be visible from northern Arizona communities such as Camp Verde, Clints Well, Flagstaff, Payson, Pine, Sedona, and Strawberry. Smoke is predicted to travel toward the east/northeast and may impact nearby Blue Ridge communities, but is predicted to most likely impact the communities of Holbrook, Snowflake, and/or Show Low.

The Snake Ridge Fire is currently 11,189 acres, and burnout operations over the next couple of days will help the fire consume an additional 4,000 acres. Firefighters will continue to monitor fire progression and to reinforce and secure the fire line perimeter and hope to fully contain the fire by midweek.
